

A DAY IN THE LIFE MEET RACHAEL

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Hi my name is Rachael, and I'm a Management Consulting Manager from the New York City office.

The projects I work on focus on using innovative, interactive and data driven analytics to create targeted leader and employee journey maps.

My typical week at Accenture means I commute to work in various ways which makes life really interesting. I generally travel to the client Monday to Thursday. We have a large team that fly from New York City so we travel on the same flight to the client side.

Just arrived at my home away from home: the hotel! Just about to check in.

And now I'm here at T&O Live preparing for a mock client meeting. And today I'm entering the Dock in Dublin.

Friday's are a lot more flexible. Typical I work from home or sometimes going to our Accenture office and sometimes I've also been known to be working on a beach somewhere.

Our Accenture team is pretty social and we host a number of cool events when we're together. Team dinners, workouts, Broadway shows and even wine making.

When you join Accenture, you're assigned a career counselor. A career counselor is someone that helps you navigate through Accenture and helps provide you guidance on your career development. I have four counselees and I typically like to catch up with them casually.

I love working at Accenture. Developing a corporate career, seeing the world and advising my clients on how to improve their employee experience has been awesome.

Check out our roles if you want to follow in my footsteps.
