

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF ACCENTURE CONSULTANTS VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

David: Consulting is a crazy adventure.

Sage: If you were to ask me what a typical day is like at Accenture, you'd probably get a different answer every single day. Today I'm in our local San Francisco office. Next week, I'll be on my client site in Chicago for my project.

Edgar: My typical day starts with the daily call with my team where we give our updates on our projects, and the cool thing about that is we get to work with people all over the world.

Deshawna: I'm in North Carolina working face-to-face with the client. Right now I'm on a change management project where I, as a liaison, am going in and teaching the client about a new technology and helping them adjust to it.

TJ: I wanted to work in a fast-paced environment across a broad spectrum of topics with smart people who are willing to help me learn, and I definitely feel like I've had that opportunity at Accenture.

Ari: It's the different paths that you could choose. You could do different types of work, different roles, different industries.

Sarah: Accenture's provided so many opportunities to learn and grow, whether that be through events such as panels, in-person training, or conferences. One of my favorites has been going to Digital World in Long Beach, California, where I was able to learn from people all around the world from Digital.

Deshawna: The biggest skill that I'm learning is how to be flexible. Flexibility is so important as a consultant because you have to be able to adjust to whatever changes that are coming your way, or whatever new challenges you have to face next the week, and it's been amazing. It's been teaching me so much about myself, and it has been teaching me about how to be an amazing consultant.

Deshawna: There's so much diversity and that is not as common at other companies.

TJ: A really important part of Accenture's culture is what we call developing others. My teams have definitely been very supportive in helping me develop the skills that I like to focus on in the project.

Sarah: I love meeting my team outside of work. There are always events in the office, usually on Fridays. It's great to get to know each other outside of the day-to-day.

Ari: I've made a ton of meaningful friendships by getting involved in CDP in the Chicago community. I even met my roommate Chloe last year.

TJ: When we talk about innovation at Accenture, one of the first things that comes to my mind is the digital hub here in Chicago, and it's really meant to inspire different ways of thinking and innovation.

Sarah: One of my favorite parts of my job is being able to facilitate and work with the Liquid Studios in Boston Innovation Hub on design thinking sessions. It's amazing to work with clients to come up with innovative solutions through design thinking methodologies.

David: I've personally learned from some of the leaders and experts in their field, and to be able to do that at the age of 23, and have an amazing life with amazing friends and just a place that really cares about me, is the best thing that could've ever happened.

So I love my time at Accenture. This is anything but a typical day, but in consulting, there really isn't a typical day, so here's to my adventure on the road and here's to your adventure coming up.

Cheers.
