As virtual environments enhance our physical worlds and redefine our sense of place, organizations are creating new ways for people to work, consume and socialize. This results in a blurring of physical and virtual worlds. We call this Signal: Real Virtualities.

Leading organizations are creating more value for customers and employees, opening up new markets and improving interactions and experiences.